

SATURDAY, AUGUST 6, 3 A. M.

TO OUR AGENTS AND WEEKLY SUBSCRIBERS.—In consequence of the continued advance of everything connected with the publishing of our paper, we can take no more subscriptions to our Weekly at this time. We must have $250 for each and every subscriber.

THE KILLING OF HINES BY THE HOOD GUERRILLAS.—Some exciting news to exist in Grayson county over the capture and killing of a noted guerrilla named Hines by a detachment of the Hood Guerrillas. We are informed that two days ago the militia of the county went in pursuit of a guerrilla band. After a long and wearisome scout they came upon a party of five of the outlaws, who, at the first approach of the guards, broke for the woods, and failed to effect their escape by flight. They gave rapid pursuit, and were successful in capturing a young man named Hines, formerly a resident of Bardstown. The company were then detailed to guard him to Munfordville. While on the detail heard many reports of the news of guerrilla gang, and they kept vigilant watch, as they had no desire to become captives themselves. On the route, they stopped at a spring to obtain water, and while two of the guards were drinking, the third kept watch over the prisoner. Hines appeared to be reckless of life, and no doubt sought the opportunity a good one to attempt his escape. He started for the woods on a full run. The guards called upon him to halt or they would fire. He paid no attention to their warning, but pressed vigorously forward, they fired several shots at him as he disappeared in the woods, when, hearing what they supposed to be the tramp of horsemen, they became alarmed, and beat a rapid retreat. They returned to Litchfield and informed the citizens of what had transpired. Several days afterwards a party visited the spot, and, on searching among the brush where Hines disappeared as the guards fired a volley at him, they found the unfortunate young man stretched upon the ground dead. Several balls had passed through his body. We understand that rebel sympathizers at Bardstown and in Grayson county instigate that Hines was really murdered by the men who had his guard. The view, in our opinion, is one of improbability, and is a base slander on the character of the Union guards, whose characters are above suspicion. If the facts are as stated above, unquestionably the guards were simply performing their duty when they fired upon Hines. He had carelessly studied the situation, and determined on escape, at the risks what they would make the attempt, and fell, a victim of his rashness.

HARRIDEN.—At an early hour on yesterday morning, the dead body of a man, supposed to be a soldier of the 9th Pennsylvania cavalry, was found lying in the middle of the Salt Fork road, seven miles from the city. The body was divested of clothing, and bore marks of violence. There is no doubt but that he was really murdered. His horse was discovered lying a short distance from him. It is presumed that he belonged to a scouting party out during the night, and, straggling by the side of the body, he was waylaid and shot, as no one else was near.

Writing the above, we learn that an agent was held over the body, and the soldier's name was discovered to be H. Robinson, company B, 9th Pennsylvania cavalry.

HARRY MORGAN, Andy McDonald, Wm. James Haley, O. Lee, and Wm. Copinger, alias Scotty, were arrested on Thursday, charged with stealing $200 from Joseph Sorley. They were examined before the Justice Court yesterday morning. It was decided that the entire party were playing at Fitzpatrick's, on Market street, near where the theft was committed. Odes Lee and Wm. Ford were discharged, and Haley, and Copinger were each held to the Circuit Court on the sum of STE FRA. ATLANTA.—We conversed with Mr. Sherman last evening who left Gen. Sherman's front, near Atlanta, on Tuesday morning.

He says that our advance is within one mile of the city, and heavy skirmishing daily occurs. The rebel works surrounding the city are very formidable, and a direct assault would cost many lives. He thinks that Sherman, without much difficulty, will take the position and force Hood to retreat.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

A correspondent from Marietta, Georgia, relates an inadvertence of ours in calling General's command Kentucky cavalry, as is not present a Kentucky regiment second cavalry division, which is com-of McInty's, Long's, and Wilden's regiments and Stoker's Chicago Board of Trade.

A year ago the 23 Kentucky cavalry was in the Ohio cavalry, when they enjoyed their full confidence in the field and congenial neighbors in camp.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—We conversed with Mr. Sherman last evening who left Gen. Sherman's front, near Atlanta, on Tuesday morning.

He says that our advance is within one mile of the city, and heavy skirmishing daily occurs. The rebel works surrounding the city are very formidable, and a direct assault would cost many lives. He thinks that Sherman, without much difficulty, will take the position and force Hood to retreat.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA.—Two hundred and five rebel soldiers (believed to be) were sent from the city under guard to the State Capital. Two hundred rebel officers were transferred to the State Capital, and were sent north to the interior of the state to remain during the war. Yes.

Eighty-two soldiers were furnished to the Indians, and every thing argues speed and success.

ATLANTA

